

Digging deep for scosa

WORKPLACE giving has been taken to new heights by companies helping local disability organisation scosa.

Coca-Cola Adelaide has been digging deep for 50 years through an employee payroll donation scheme.

Scosa is acknowledging Coca-Cola and other companies which have been so generous over the years.

Scosa chief executive Nicole Graham says employers match the donations made by staff.

“Workplace giving is a simple yet powerful way to assist scosa in delivering our valuable services to people living with disabilities,” she says. “Since 1950, the power of this collective effort has raised $2.5 million.” Coca Cola has raised more than $40,000 for scosa.